
Letter from the Editors

7th May 2012

Dear reader,

This is a seminal issue of the Journal of European Psychology Students (JEPS). It was born in the midst of several changes in the way we review manuscripts and this perhaps explains the time that has passed since our last publication. Now, for the first time, you are witnessing the work of our Associate Editors, our Copyeditors, and our Proofreaders whose dedication allowed us to publish more articles than before. This issue, a joint effort of Editorial Boards from two mandates, therefore marks a leap in the quality of the review process hopefully reflected in the feedback we provided to the authors and, on the other hand, in what articles we chose to bring to our readers.

As always, we are publishing articles from all fields of psychology endorsing innovative ideas and feedback to create a stepping stone for a scientific career path of psychology students in Europe and worldwide.

We wish to thank all the authors for their trust in our journal and give a deep bow to our Associate Editors, Reviewers, Copyeditors, and Proofreaders. We are grateful for your support which keeps JEPS free of charge to the readers as well as to the authors. This issue, or any future issues, would not be possible without your contribution.

Yours,

JEPS Editorial Board 2012/2011:

Maris Vainre, Balázs Fehér, Martin Vasilev, Zorana Zupan, Ivan Flis, Sina Scherer

JEPS Editorial Board 2011/2010:

Maris Vainre, Oliver Arnold, Balázs Fehér, Sarah Muno, Ivan Flis, Elena Semenishina